

All Belgium Infested By Forces of Kaiser May Fight at Antwerp

GERMANS OCCUPY BRUSSELS AND GHENT AND PRESS ON TO BURGESS AND OS-
TEND—EXACT HEAVY
TRIBUTE.

EXPECT GREAT BATTLE

Germans and the Al-
Start at Any Moment—Germans Prepare
to Defend Temporary Capital.

The German advance into Belgium is going on today, apparently without serious check. Having taken Brussels the troops of Emperor William are forcing their way steadily and rapidly to the north and west. They have occupied Ghent and are approaching Bruges and Ostend. They would appear to be endeavoring to overrun the entire northern and western Belgium. At the same time they would seem to be drawing closer to the French frontier.
Southeast of Brussels they are investing the fortified city of Namur on the Meuse.

It is reported from Antwerp
that the Germans will not continue to occupy Brussels, contending themselves merely with marching through the city. This determination however, may be altered by the attitude of the city treasurer of Brussels, who is quoted as saying he will never pay $40,- 000,000 demanded by the Germans
as a war tax.

The concentration of the Belgium army before Antwerp is said to have been accomplished in good order and the morale of the Belgium troops is reported to be unimpaired.

While German patrols are close to Antwerp no strong detachments have been reported yet near the city. Whether or not the Germans will attempt to capture Antwerp or simply invest it, it is not yet clear.

Further accounts of the reported Serbian victory over the Austrians, say the fighting lasted
three days along the Drina river.

The time limit of the Japanese ultimatum to Germany demanding the surrendering of the German holdings of Kiau Chow, expires tomorrow and Japan is reported as fully ready to proceed against the German position.

A dispatch from Tokyo states that the German ambassador for Japan will sail for Seattle August 26, and that a number of German officials already have left Tokyo.

The news of the German occupation of Brussels has been posted in Berlin.

The American ambassador in Berlin, has published a denial of reports that Americans have been treated in Germany. He declares that today they enjoy as much security in Germany as in America.

London, announced officially that General Leman, the Belgian commander of the forts at Liege, is a prisoner in the hands of the Germans at Cologne.

The American consul general at Rio Janeiro has reported the sinking of the British steamer "Hades"
by the German cruiser Dresden.

PLANS MOVEMENTS OF AUSTRIAN ARMY

Field Marshal von Krobatin, Austrian minister of war.

ported to have arrived at Strassburg
for the defense of that fortress.

Both Germany and Austria-Hungary
have called the Landstrum, their last reserve of troops, to the colors.

Situation at Liege.

The correspondent at Amsterdam of the Reuters 'telegram company has sent in the following account of the present situation at Liege which he obtained from the Reuters company which in turn got the story from its correspondent at Maestricht:

"The firing of a shot from a private house on the water front in Liege yesterday was the signal for the widespread bombardment and arson
on the part of the German army of occupation." The Maestricht correspondent says, "The situation of the population of Liege has become exceedingly perilous. Immediately the shot was fired, the Germans opened up with their machine guns, destroyed
twenty houses, and killed the inmates of ten other houses."

Exact $12,000,000 Tribute.

In addition to the war tributes
of $10,000,000 levied upon the province and the city, Liege has been mulcted of an additional $2,000,000. The German army administration having sized this amount of cash in private banks.

All citizens have been ordered to hand over their arms and at the same time the peasants have been invited to return to the country and begin harvesting.

The lives of foreigners in Liege are in danger. There are a great many Dutchmen in Liege, and the Dutch government is taking measures
for their protection."

Belgians Guard Antwerp.

Paris, Aug. 22.—Official information made public today is to the effect that the concentration of Belgian troops before Antwerp has been completed in good order. The morale of the Belgian troops has not been impaired.

A local paper describing the entry of the Germans into Brussels says that the feature of the maneuvers was the presence, with the German forces, of one hundred automobiles fitted with machine guns.

Use "Dum-dum" Bullets.

Paris, August 22.—The government today calls the attention of the powers which signed the Hague convention to its report, that on August 10, following an engagement a French army found five dum-dum bullets on the road near Manner, Alsace.

The bullets were turned over to the French commanding general.

Other Dum-dum bullets taken from the bodies of the French soldier killed in battle has also been turned over to the French commander.

Near Holland Frontier.

London, August 22.—In a dispatch
from Amsterdam the correspondent of the daily mail says:

"I have received a telephone message from Rosendall on the Dutch Belgian frontier, declaring that German Islands were seen yesterday after three miles from the Dutch frontier near Essen which is eighteen miles north of Antwerp."

RUSSIANS ADVANCING; VICTORY IN PRUSSIA; AUSTRIANS TRAPPED

Czar's Army on Entire Austro German Frontier—Win Battle in East Prussia—Three
Austrian Corps
Hemmed In.

London, August 22.—A dispatch to the exchange telegraph company from St. Petersburg, says it is officially announced that the Russian army is now advancing, among the entire Austro-German front, and successfully maintaining the offensive at every point of contact.

Russian Victories.

In a dispatch from St. Petersburg
the correspondent of the Reuters telegram company says that the Russia general advance both of Austria and Germany is progressing without interrupting cavalry engagement on the northern army on Friday was a severe blow to the Germans in East Prussia. An entire German battery was captured. Austrian troops are being driven from the German entrenchments and military buildings.

Austrians Trapped.

Three Austrian army corps are engaged in the Austro-Serbian theatre of war. They are wedged in the junction of the Lirna and Yacal rivers. In a battle of four days duration the Serbians capture sixty Austrian guns.

Austrians Drowned.

London, Aug. 22.—According to a Central News dispatch from Rome many Austrians were drowned in the sea in the Adriatic. The Serb artillery annihilated the survivors. The correspondent says twenty-five thousand Austrians were killed or wounded in the battle and ten thousand were taken prisoners.

Adriatic Sea Fight.

Official news from Paris give the details of the encounter in the Adriatic about a week ago. The Zrinyi, a vessel of over 14,000 tons
and a crew of 857 men.

The Zrinyi was struck by a shell
from a French battleship. This projectile exploded in her magazine and damaged her so badly that she foundered in a few minutes.

SETS A FURIOUS PACE

Averaging 78 Miles an Hour—He Was Leading the Field When Accident Occurred—Mechanician Also Badly Hurt.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Elgin, Ill., August 22.—Spencer Wishart died this afternoon of injuries received when the car he was driving in the Elgin national road race,
crashed into a fence and overturned.

Wishart was reported badly injured by the overturning of his car at St. Joseph hospital, it is discovered that Wishart's skull was fractured and his chest crushed. There was no hope of his surviving the injuries physicians stated as soon as they had made the examination.

Wishart, the veteran hero of many automobile races, was fatally injured when he was leading the field in the Elgin National race today. His mechanician, Jenter, also was badly hurt.
Wishart's car turned over.

Wishart's right leg was broken and he was injured internally. His assistant's right arm was fractured and he also was injured internally. Both were rushed to a hospital in this city unconscious. Mrs. Wishart, who had been cheering in the stand each time her daring husband flew past, was brought to his bedside.

Sets Furious Pace.

The accident was due to the furious pace maintained. For nearly half of the distance of 301 miles until the accident, Wishart averaged almost 78
miles an hour, nearly five miles faster than the new record which was established yesterday by Ralph DePal-
ma. It was at no means Wishart's race as yet, however, for Bob Burman, who is known as a daring driver, was close behind Wishart, to maintain his lead. Wishart's car was struck by a tree which caused the spectators to gasp.

On the thirteenth lap his car skid-ded through a fence and overturned.
Some of the witnesses said that he could not have lost control of the steering gear.

Burman Takes Lead.

The accident put Burman in the lead, but the awful pace and the heat of his engine made him sick and he had to withdraw in favor of Ralph Mulford, who took his seat at the steering wheel. The new leader was closely followed by Alene, Pallen, De Palma, and Barney Glidden.

The race was not stopped. While spectators were lifting the car of the testament, they set faces looking straight ahead in the dust and smoke,
pursued their breakneck course.

National Trophy Race.

Twenty-two automobiles lined up today for the start of the second 301
mile grind on the Elgin road course.
The race was a free for all for the Elgin National trophy.

The number of the withdrawals were small. Practically the same drivers who raised the 301 mile event
of yesterday, were scheduled to start.
Ralph Mulford, however, who had been yesterday, was compelled to withdraw, the frame of his machine being broken. Ralph De Palma, winner of yesterday's race, was a favorite with many in today's event. Spencer Wishart and Barney Glidden were picked as probable winners. The cars were to start two at a time at 11 o'clock today.

Yesterday's Events.

Ralph De Palma, hard pressed by Gil Anderson, won the Cole cup automobile race on Friday, finishing the 305 miles in 4:05:10, an average of 78.8 miles an hour. De Palma's time 44 seconds later, followed by Mulford in 4:08:16, and Oldfield in 4:15:23. De Palma was the winner of the event in 1913, when his average speed was 83.8 miles an hour. De Palma's fastest lap was 6:05, an average of 82.5
miles an hour.

UNION HAS FAVORED NO CANDIDATES FOR OFFICES SAYS TUBBS

Secretary of Equity Society Urges Press to Be More Careful in Their Endorsements.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 22.—Mr. W. Wes
Tubbs, secretary of the Wisconsin
State Union of the American Society of Equity, today issued a statement that no endorsement of candidates has as yet been made by the union, but that the society reserved the right to do so if the confusion warrants.

The statement of Mr. Tubbs followed.
"My attention has been called to newspaper articles so worded as to convey the impression that the Society of Equity has endorsed this man or that man for governor for United States senator or for congress. A few weeks ago the press was announcing that 'Utman' was the Equity candidate for governor. Later, according to the press, Hutton was the organization's endorsement. Both rumors are wrong and without foundation.

"Both are good men, and so are Hull, Dail and Aylward. The same truth may be said of Morris and Huggins for United States senator. We want the best man, however, for each of these positions and with first and second choice ballot we believe the voters will make a wise selection.

"If deemed necessary, because of continued distortion and misrepresentation, the society, through its executive board, reserves the right to express its views on the subject, but officially—so there will be no necessity for misunderstanding. Until such official signed endorsement is made, if at all, the press is requested to play fair and not strive to use the American Society of Equity and its influence, which is powerful, in behalf of any candidates."

BELOIT GUN PLAYS GETTING NUMEROUS

Italians Stage Show Yesterday but Shoot Nobody—Wounded
Constable's Condition
is Better.

Stories of the old frontier days in the wild west towns are almost on par with stories of the old frontier days. People there are developing the instinct to dodge behind the barrel or any place of safety
when the bad man flashes his gun.

Beloit's second gunman of the week was apprehended yesterday. A party of Pleasant street Italians began shooting at each other and hurling brick bats. The police were called and they had previously arrested the brawl was staged near the Melrose flats, a short distance north and opposite the college.

The scene of the arrival on the scene one of the victims was thought to have been shot but further investigation showed him only covered with cuts received when the sign of his pals fell true and he stopped the bottles. One of the combatants was arrested and another escaped.

Sheiff Whipple, the Beloit constable and the victim of "Red Dog" Joe Knauth's shooting episode of Thursday has a chance for life. Pneumonia has developed in the wounds but the attending physician is hopeful that the patient will recover. He is sleeping and at no time has he been unconscious very long. He is able to take but little nourishment but his own words and treatment are as good as slightly better than at first. Mrs.
Root is almost constantly at her husband's bedside and serves as a good encouragement to the wounded fighter.

"Buildup" Joe Knauth is being held in the Rockford jail pending the outcome of Root's injuries. It is probable that no change will be lodged against Knauth until the doctors are able to tell definitely the result of the shooting will be.

The different versions of the affair
have caused a great deal of alarm at Beloit, but there is every indication that Root was shot with his own gun which Knauth slipped from the constable's hip pocket at the last moment. Root was shot in the head and chest and was bleeding from his hands by the time he was taken to Rockford to be held as a witness in the trial.

MEAT PACKER MAKES MARKET STATEMENT

President of Morris & Co.'s Meat Pack-

Meat Situation.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Thomas E. Wilson, president of the meat packing firm of Morris, Morris & Company, today characterized at absurd the rumor reported that American meat packers are shipping into Canada in a statement, he said:

"We are now, and have been in the Canadian markets, seeking their live stock and meat for use in the country.
Canada has a three cent tax per pound levied by Canada effectively shut us out of that market."

La Crosse, Aug. 22.—Four persons are dead as the result of the explosion of a lamp in the farm house of Thomas Straight residing in Hay Valley, a lonely recess lying in the heart of the timbered country. The victims were David Thomas, his six-year-old son, and the two children of Mr.
and Mrs. Straight.

While Straight and his wife were employed on the farm, Straight entered and succeeded in rescuing one of the Thomas children. Thomas entered the building, but before he could rescue the little ones who were on the second floor, the roof fell in, burying
the four victims beneath the ruins.
The charred bones were found in a heap when the fire had gone out.

The building was a frame one and the flames had made such headway
when discovered that nothing could be saved.

Paris, Aug. 22.—Cheap living is an

Paris. Meats today sold at the lowest prices in twenty years and at the central market yesterday, vegetables were abundant and comparatively cheap. This is in spite of the fact that some merchants have raised the prices at the risk of boycott and pros-

Today's Edgerton News

Edgerton, Aug. 22.—The many friends of Attorney Paul N. Grubb wish to congratulate him on his approaching marriage to the daughter of a prominent family. He is soon to bring home as a bride Miss Ethel Robinson of Oak Park, Ill.

Mark Hahn, the Edgerton pacer, owned by William McIntosh and Oscar Jensen, was sold yesterday to George Harrison of this city, who expects to race him next week at Beloit.

The Misses Inez and Edna Strassburg of Richland Center, are visiting relatives here this week.

J. A. Ellingson, accompanied by Thad Watson, a nurse from the Lake Geneva sanitarium, went to Elgin Wednesday by auto to attend the races. They expect to spend a week between McHenry and Fox Lake returning by way of Geneva.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Huxtable went to Dodgeville to attend the funeral of Mrs. W. James, which took place there today.

Miss Teresa Duran of Chicago, is spending a week with relatives here. The Culture club enjoyed an outing at Lake Kegonsa yesterday.

City Health Officer S. B. Buckmaster reports the health of Janesville very good at present. No contagious signs are up in the city and there has not been one needed since the first week of July.

Dr. Buckmaster reports this very favorable with nearby cities having numerous cases. For the present the doctor is knocking wood and hoping for a continuance of the record.

The reader will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. There is no doubt that the cure of Catarrh is having much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that fails to cure. Send for full particulars.

SUCCESSFUL FAIR ENDS

Visitors at Rock County Exposition are unanimous in their praise. —Friday's Race Results.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Evansville, Aug. 22.—The big Rock County fair came to a close today its success is unquestioned management, visitors and exhibitors are all pleased and they could not be otherwise with the best stock display, best free attractions, best racing seen at a fair in Wisconsin and the best attendance ever witnessed here.

The attendance at the fair today was estimated at nine thousand people. The weather was ideal for the races, the free-for-all event in which George Gano and Knight of Strathmore were entered being the principal feature. Fast time was expected.

The ball game this morning between Footville and Brodhead nines resulted in a victory for the former, 8 to 6. Lenta, who started for Footville, but was later relieved by Owen Smith and Eldred did the hurrying for Brodhead. Brodhead in the sixth inning for Brodhead, won the game for his team by smacking a triple into the field. Broughton of Albany umpired.

GAME MONDAY WILL DECIDE LEADERSHIP

Championship of League is at Stake on Game at Washington School. —Entries for Meets Fast Increasing.

Next Monday afternoon the Webster and the Adams school playground indoor baseball teams will clash at the Washington school to decide the championship of the league. Both teams are at present tied for first position, and as this is the last game of the season, the victor will capture the coveted honor. Both nines are in the pink of condition for the game. Following are the averages of the teams at the present time:

	W. L.	Pct.
Webster	4 1	.800
Adams	4 1	.800
Jefferson	2 4	.333
Washington	1 5	.167

About two hundred boys and girls of the four playgrounds went on the bike Friday to Crystal Springs, where a pleasant time was had. The day was spent in swimming, playing baseball and many other games. The start was made at nine o'clock in the morning, so that the children could have plenty of time before they returned at six o'clock.

Entries for the field and swimming meets to be held on Wednesday and Friday afternoons respectively are coming at a rapid rate. Both boys and girls are taking an active interest in the events, and promises to be of high class. The entries must be in by Monday evening, so that the events can be arranged in the proper order by the directors.

FARMERS TO PICNIC HERE ON SEPT. 5TH

Rock County Agriculturists Will Gather at Asylum Farm for Annual Field Demonstration.

Rock county farmers will gather at the asylum farm at Janesville on September 5 for their annual picnic and field demonstration meeting, according to plans just announced by Superintendent D. M. Barless.

A program of special interest to farmers of this section has been arranged for the meeting, said C. F. Nordberg, who is in charge of the demonstration. He will conduct the meeting, yesterday. "We have secured speakers of statewide prominence to talk on problems of agriculture which are peculiar to Rock county. A tour of inspection of the asylum farm, where only pure bred grains are raised, should prove helpful to farmers."

Some of the principal topics of discussion which will come before the meeting are: silo building and dairymaking; liming soils for alfalfa; barn structure, and the breeding of pure seed grains. Experts will first lecture on the subjects and then lead a general discussion.

For the women guests at the picnic, Miss Elizabeth Kelley of the home economics course at the university has been secured to give a talk on "Influence in the Home and the Necessity of Training the Future Wives and Daughters of the State."

GAZETTE BULLETINS POSTED ON SUNDAY TO GIVE WAR NEWS

Telephone Calls Will Also Be Answered Between Hours of Two and Five-Thirty Sunday Afternoon.

Owing to the length of time elapsing between Saturday afternoon and Monday afternoon, when there will be no issue of the Gazette, arrangements have been made to supply the public with the principal war news, giving brief bulletins will be posted on the Gazette bulletin board and at a number of other points throughout the city. The first dispatches will be received about twelve o'clock and later news during the afternoon.

In order to further serve the public which will be interested in the latest moves of the contending armies in Europe, telephone calls will be answered between two o'clock and five-thirty p. m. and a summary of the news bulletins will be read to inquirers. All calls on either phone should be 77-2 rings. Persons out of the city who may be interested in the news may receive the same by paying the telephone tolls.

The Gazette began the practice of posting war bulletins on Sunday several weeks ago and the plan has met instant approval. All news received from the Associated Press, the world's most reliable news agency.

MAGNOLIA

Magnolia, Aug. 22.—Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Hewitt and Miss Ed. Hewitt, who have been their guests the past week, left Monday for Aurora, Ill., for a couple weeks' visit there and in Indiana.

Mrs. T. M. Harper was the victim of a very painful accident Monday, Aug. 10th, when her slipper caught in the lines of the harness which she was removing from the horse, and a quick move by the horse jerked her from her feet, dragging her a few feet before the horse became free. Dr. Edwards was called and found the hip out of joint and other minor bruises. At present she is doing as well as can be expected. Her mother, Mrs. Lottie Edwards, is caring for her.

There were no services at the A. C. church Sunday morning owing to threatening clouds, but the missionary program given by the L. W.'s in the evening was listened to by an appreciative audience.

Prayer meeting at W. B. Andrews' Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. McCoy and daughter are spending a part of their vacation at the former's parental home.

CONFLICT IN EUROPE MEANS HIGHER TAXES

INCREASED INTERNAL REVENUE TAXES WILL FURTHER BURDEN WISCONSIN CITIZENS

AMERICAN SYMPATHIES

Should Not Be Expended on Foreign Combatants, Says Correspondent in Weekly Letter.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Aug. 22.—Wisconsin will probably have her first realization of what European war means in an increase of taxes. The national government will, it is expected, be speedily forced to provide new income to take the place of the loss on imports that are cut off by the cessation of business with Europe. Such increase in income taxes and upon a smaller limit, perhaps as low as $2,000 income; a stamp tax on checks, on legal papers, and upon toilet articles, and a ten cent increase in internal revenue taxes upon spirits, beer and tobacco. This was the general trend of gossip in Washington the past week. The threat by Japan of war in the Pacific may mean much more serious consequences. In any event, Wisconsin is face to face with a situation made doubly serious by the reckless, extravagant expenditure of her local, municipal and state governments. These have already burdened her beyond her reasonable ability to bear, and war will surely add to her burdens. Whether the war will help her industries and her agriculture is problematical, and dependent upon many and altogether uncertain contingencies. In any event, we have for some years, in these letters, endeavored to call attention to the fact that the public financing in Wisconsin was utterly without foresight, and such as to invite real bankruptcy. If any great emergency should tax our resources, the emergency is at hand and there will be no escape from the consequences of our state folly. However, the state we may be, they are certain to be serious.

Can't Take Sides.

Americans need waste little of their time or energies or sympathies upon others in the awful cataclysm of war with which Europe seems about to deluge the earth. Our own interests and the very neutrality that we hope to preserve may force us into war at any moment, and our friends of tomorrow may be our enemies tomorrow. We are no longer an isolated nation. When we went to war with Spain on a pretext other than self-defense we cut all the strings to our traditions and swung clear into the stream of world's politics and trade. Today our interests at Panama and in the Pacific Ocean may call for strong self-assertion at any moment. Friction and peace between nations and the rules of civilization, about which the world has been babbling for a generation, are today face to face with elemental forces. It needs no prophet to tell us, only a plain scratch to get through the boasted surface finish of civilization to the fundamental barbarian. Americans may as well cast aside all the special pleas of politicians and face the truth. The truth is that the last shadows of European autocracy are in a death grapple with advancing democracy, and America as the representative of the most democratic of this generation, may be called to become the final arbiter of peace among the nations of the earth. If any Wisconsin man or woman wants a background from which to study the situation, unembarrassed by the present excitement, I comment to them the present little volume entitled "World Politics and the American People," by our distinguished townsman, then a professor at the university, the present American ambassador to China, Paul S. Reinsch.

Taste of War Spirit.

Last week in vacation trip up the lakes I had a sniff of real war spirit that was as unexpected as it was interesting. With a friend I visited the Canadian Sault. A dock attendant, an inveterate catfisher, and it was not until we succeeded in getting the confidence of the customs officer that we were allowed to land. When we got to the principal thoroughfare of the city, the sidewalks were crowded, and a moment later there swung into the foot of the street a big military band, playing "Rule Britannia," followed by 150 Canadians in khaki uniforms. We were later told that 125 men, a number of them Boer war veterans, had already enlisted, and expected to go to England immediately; that the Canadian had called twenty to muster for service, and that wealthy Canadians would, at their own expense, raise and equip two more regiments. The men whom I saw were on their way to mount guard for the night on the locks of the Canadian canal. On the streets there was little evidence of excitement, but I was greatly impressed by the tense faces of several women that I saw before the new war bulletin board. They were evidently English and Scotch, and their anxious eagerness evinced the deeper emotions of their souls. "Some of those volunteers belong to them," I said to myself. Other things brought to my mind. At Houghton I was told that the copper mines were cutting their forces 50 per cent because the lack of European demand already seriously limits the market for their copper. At the American Sault the revenue cutter Mackinaw had a dispatch from the United States treasury department instructing her to observe strict neutrality; and the citizens were urged upon our war department the return of the United States troops to Fort Bray, whence they were, months ago, sent to the Mexican border. A bomb in the locks on the American side would be disastrous to the important commerce of the lakes than on the Canadian side, because the American locks handle much the greater proportion of the lake traffic. Such facts brought to mind the fact that to Wisconsin men the imminence of our foreign relations. Only a few miles north of us are 4,000 miles of border beyond which is the territory of the greatest belligerent nations. Circumstances may arise that in a moment would make it of far greater and more warlike importance than our Mexican border, that has for several years been guarded by our army.

"War" in Wisconsin.

From what has been said it should be clear that we of Wisconsin have business of our own to mind, and the fact should not be minimized that the riotous mindless people. The time has come when the party bickerings of our swarm of small bore politicians are sure to attract less and less attention. Citizens of Wisconsin who pay taxes are already sobered by the danger of the foreign war. A team of national politics will attract but little attention in the face of events that shake the world. The present state campaign will spend its force early and the voters may show more in

HELPS HUBBY IN SENATE CAMPAIGN

Popular Magazine for August gives a two-page illustrated account of one of the Erie railroad's latest innovations to encourage efficiency and promote camaraderie and esprit du corps among its engine men. The Order of the Red Spot is made up of engineers who have earned money in the ranks by meeting certain general requirements of care and efficiency in handling their locomotives. Each member is entitled to have the disk upon the front of his engine painted red around the figures that give its number. Men who have the longest unbroken record of competent service, one on each division, are allowed to have their own names painted in gold letters upon the cab of their locomotives. The general honor roll offers a system of credits that opens it to all classes of employees who are entitled to credit for alert usefulness and care in the company's interests. The magazine speaks highly of the results of this encouraging the men to interest and loyalty to their employment.

Interesting Comparisons.

Germany and Austria-Hungary, the two nations now engaged in war with most of the remainder of Europe, combined are smaller than the combined area of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North and South Dakota. That is they are smaller than the nine states north of the Ohio and lying between the Allegheny Mountains and the Missouri river. Austria-Hungary is about the size of the five states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, that originally composed the old Northwest Territory. Its population is about 49,000,000. Germany is about the size of the four states left, omitting Ohio, and has about 65,000,000 of population. Either country could easily put its hands on the boundaries of Texas. The population of 114,000,000 within these small countries exceeds that of the United States and all its colonies.

Spelling Comment.

As was predicted in this letter two weeks ago, Ned Allis again won the Wisconsin golf championship. His opponent, Cavanaugh, was a veteran, was plainly beaten. The present victor's nerves had been steered by his experience in the Western Amateur. In the final analysis, the putting green was responsible for Cavanaugh's defeat. Inability to sink a three foot putt is always disastrous.

In the Wisconsin-Illinois league, Oshkosh, as was predicted some time ago, is holding first place steadily. The Twins have been playing erratic ball, winning in flashes that show championship form. Green Bay and Racine are decidedly in the lead. Oshkosh, if she maintains her present consistent pace, can hardly be nosed out for the pennant. The Boston Braves (National league) are making a heroic dash after the New York Giants, displaying a consistent winning power. The Boston team has an even chance to oust the McGrawites from their present supremacy.

Short Notes.

A committee of Milwaukee women are going to investigate the rise in food prices. It would be well for them to try to discover the time in all history when war-time prices were not high, and normal food prices are much higher today than ever before. Isn't it a good time to give over such tommyrot?

The intense interest in news of the war is very apparent here in Milwaukee, with its many large foreign born elements. In this connection it may be of general interest to quote the last United States census, for there are a good many misapprehensions as to the facts on the part of some people who jump at conclusions. In 1910 Milwaukee county contained 423,000 people. Of these, 128,230 were of foreign birth, as follows: Germany, 74,723; Austria, 14,083; Hungary, 7,065; total, 95,831. Other races: Scotland, 12,932; England, 12,339; Ireland, 2,412; Wales, 1,022; total, 21,113. All other foreign born, 12,286. Native born, of native parentage, 93,793. These figures lose sight of our large Polish population, for they are reckoned as Austrians or Germans, because they came from one or the other of those empires. It may be of interest also to call attention to the fact that only 22 per cent of Wisconsin population was of foreign birth in 1910.

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

A farmer who was the owner of a Percheron colt, valued at one thousand dollars, was busy telling a neighbor how he was going to get principal interest out of him. The neighbor was older by twenty years, had his family raised, while the speaker's children were all in the neighborhood growing up. He listened patiently to a long recital of the colt's good points, of the man's plans. Finally he asked: "How much is your boy, Jim, worth? What are your plans for him?"

We need not follow the story further, but if you happen to be rich in the possession of a boy or girl, what are your plans for them? You may as well get them straightened out now, not be able to realize your wishes on that boy or girl of yours now, but eventually you are going to gather in your reward for the way you raise them. If they inherit your sturdy perseverance and honesty, confidence and faith, and hope, and if they are the mother of their mother are they not worth as much as any thoroughbred colt? Are they not worthy of the best legacy that a man or woman can leave to their family—a good education and the remembrance of an honest father and a virtuous mother?

Don't put yourself on the back and say your child has the last named requirements for a future man or woman. That is don't do it too soon. Not until you can truthfully tell yourself that you are an honest father; that to the best of your ability you are taking just as good care of little Jim as you are of your other possessions. That he is going to have the chance to receive what nowadays is vitally necessary to go against the world and be able to stand up to a training for his life's work.

To provide three meals a day and a bed for a child is not doing your duty. Even adding decent clothes does not cut the scales in your direction. Mind and heart must be trained and kindled as well as the body. If there is a better thing in this world for a growing boy to own than a first class partner—a father who knows what's up before he is sent through the mill with him who can with just one friendly word or handclasp straighten out his (to him) serious problems—why kindly trot him out, curiosities always.

Don't ever stop to think what thirty minutes every day put in with your children would do for them and you? Thirty minutes you can spare, no matter where in life you lot may lie. That is, if you are not too indolent, too weak-willed to make an honest effort to raise your sons right, to train them how to play the game the way Americans should play it? A man who at heart is big and clean and fair is a

OHIO ESTABLISHES CONVICT BRICK SHOP

State Penitentiary Has Unique Plant System at Columbus—Seventy at Work.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Columbus, Ohio, August 22.—Other states have prisoners working in "honor squads" on roads or employ them in penitentiary shops, but no other state has established a model factory system for convicts. This plant, going at full blast today, is not within the penitentiary walls. It is at a little place called Cobb, a few miles from here. There 70 prisoners work six days a week making bricks. No guards stand by to see that they do not escape. They are alone except for 10 skilled brick makers, all employed by the state, who direct the work.

The men live in a big dormitory built by themselves. They have a baseball diamond nearby and a small baseball league has been organized among the prisoners. They have a band which furnishes concerts every night. But their favorite diversion is the holding of a mock trial. They take delight in addressing to the jury and in giving ponderous "judicial" decisions.

The capacity of the plant is 30,000 paving brick or 45,000 building brick a day. Five more kilns are to be built and more prisoners will be sent to work on the plant. The entire output is used by the state. Expenses of the plant, outside of pay to the men employed and the amounts allowed the prisoners, consist almost entirely of food and fuel bills. It costs $500 a month to feed the men.

some years, and later was in advance of the two bills and stayed with them until they went to the wall, more than a year ago in Denver, Colorado.

Although Mr. Cook owned one of the finest hotels in New York, N. Y., less than twelve miles from the courthouse in New York City, and has plenty of the goods, this did not seem to satisfy him, and it was not so long before he commenced to look around to see what he might do to keep on in the busy life that he had led for so many years.

He finally dropped into the office of Miller Bros. & Arlington, owners of the 101 Ranch, Wild West, and they soon organized what was known as the 101 Ranch No. 2 Wild West, which was to go directly to London, and open up there after an unlimited engagement.

The organization carried with it the best in that line of work possible to engage, and it was early in May that they opened in London to a tremendous business, and the Miller Bros. & Arlington, as well as Mr. Cook, were very proud of the show that they had sent to Europe, and the business that it was doing.

Joe Miller took a trip to Europe where he spent a short time with the show, and their intention was to make a tour of the principal towns and cities in the different countries.

But Joe Miller had only been home a short time when war was declared, and the entire country seemed to go to the wall. The receipts in a few days dropped more than eighty per cent, and a few days later the show had to close. The final straw that broke the camels' back came when they came to the show more than 100 of their great horses. This last crash came when the average performer with the show had little money, and the cry of the show soon was, "Oh, if we were only back in America."

The people with this show are only a small part of those in the business whose names are in this country and who are stranded here. Many of them without means to return home. But Mr. Cook is expecting to make arrangements for the return of all his company to this country as soon as possible, for conditions in that country are such that they expect it to be years before anything in the line of entertainment can be made a success.

A letter from London gives us the following information:
"The 101 Wild West show at the Exposition has been hard hit. The last Monday's reports can be relied upon. The government has deprived the mail horses used in this entertainment. No option was granted. Either Louis Cooke, Zach Miller, Johnny Baker and the rest of the show had to content themselves with notes on the treasury in payment for the horses or else they would have been condemned on the charge of having some means only to be later confiscated for military purposes. Some of the cowboys, whereas, together with cow girls and other members of the show, are heading every effort to obtain whatever passage possible back to America. The contract under which this mammoth production appeared at the Exposition is automatically suspended, and it is understood that the entire aggregation, except those who enlisted in the British cause, will be back on these shores within the next three weeks if navigation can be kept open. Last Monday was Bank Holiday in London, and resulted in large business for all shows. Now, however, it is almost impossible to lure anyone out of the grounds, and salaries on all sides are being paid in paper money, for which the equivalent in change is very difficult to procure at the present time.

Many American artists had passed booked on the several liners that were to have left this week, were rudely confronted with the impossibility of returning, the result of the sudden appropriation of the ocean liners for purposes of war."

In my early career in show business, I met at different times, men who had made a reputation, and world over in many different ways. In 1912 we were showing in the different towns in Pennsylvania, and finally up into the famous oil districts of that state. There were towns like Meadville, Titusville, Oil City and many others, and all these towns in that day were without a parallel, for it was in these towns where the famous oil wells had been struck, and in a few days these towns of a few hundred inhabitants would grow to many thousands. Titusville, Meadville and Oil City mostly in valleys between the mountains. They arrived in Oil City on Sunday morning, and were to show there Monday. At that time all the people with the show were put at a hotel, and the show grounds were on top of a mountain. That I ever saw a level ground enough to put up a tent, and to go to the show grounds and settle up the week's business, when the landlord of the hotel asked me to go with him on John Steele's horse, and I said to me, "You have no doubt heard of John Steele before, but possibly not under that name. This is the notorious Coal Oil Johnny."

The stories go that he squandered more than three fourths of a million dollars, and that he worked on the streets but at this time such as you would only expect to meet. He accompanied us up to the show grounds, and took much interest in the raising of the tents, and the careful painstaking way in which the show wagons were taken up around the mountain. But at this time I did not think so much about it for excitement of our own business and the meeting of different characters all over the country, and Coal Oil Johnny at that time did not seem to appeal to me to any great extent.

With the possible exception of John D. Rockefeller, Coal Oil Johnny is going down in history as the foremost oil country character. There never will be a greater spend more money, but Johnny holds the record for speed. And he did it spending back in the days of the show, when women wore calico wrappers to church, and when a good meal could be bought for a quarter.

Coal Oil Johnny's real name was John Steele. He was an orphan boy and had been adopted by a widow named McClintock.

One of the best oil properties of the early days was struck on the McClintock farm along Oil Creek, Pennsylvania.

Johnny became an oil country teamster, hauling barrels of oil and the wooden casing that was used before the days of iron pipe. One morning while he was driving along a country road, a neighbor came running wildly across the field, shouting that the widow McClintock had died, and left Johnny all her money.

The story runs that Johnny climbed right down from his seat and left the team standing in the road. He never sat on it again. It seems that he temporarily went crazy. He began to spend his fortune and never stopped until he was dead broke. He was an open-hearted fellow. In a few days he was on the road with the motley aggregation surrounding him. The rascals trooped in and helped him spend; the sharks took him in tow and began to trim him.

His ways of spending money were very spectacular, and for weeks even the most conservative newspapers had columns after columns about Coal Oil Johnny. From a few of his escapades we can gather a good idea of the life while the money was in his pocket. To this day they will show you the street corners in Titusville where Johnny lit his cigars with ten-dollar bills. He rode through the town in a big limousine, and he carried a big minstrel troupe with him. They traveled around the country wherever the spender's inclination turned, and whole towns turned out to greet him in wonder and envy.

The small towns didn't appeal to Coal Oil Johnny. He got the fever to spend money before a larger audience. So he headed his train for Philadelphia and put up at the best hotel. Not liking the way the hotel was run, he bought it for a day and hung out a big canvas sign: "Everything Free."

Of course this couldn't keep up forever, but just how much money Coal Oil Johnny blew in. A conservative estimate would be three quarters of a million dollars. But he worked fast and kept the country guessing.

After the smoke cleared away Johnny dug ditches for a dollar and a quarter a day. And here the Sunday School papers leave him pointing him out as a horrible example. Coal Oil Johnny did not die in the poor-house, as the moralists claim. A farm near Frankfort, Kentucky, as a result of the spending cyclone, and this he settled. Rumors are afloat that he is still living and on the same farm. But he will contribute no more to fame. His chapter in history closed over a year ago. Just like a lot of other people—take their money away and they are of no further interest to the public. And yet in that country, at least, there never was a man like John Steele. And as for Meadville, Oil City and Titusville, they each seemed to be a little world of their own. But little attention was given to law and order, and the saloons and dance halls kept open all night. For a time large fortunes were made and lost in a few days, and while the show got $1 for admission and made plenty of money, people with the show always are glad to get out and away from the surroundings of these places. In my letter last week I misquoted Walter C. Du Brock when I said that he had bought the Madame Marinto string of high chairs, and that he had never seen the Higgins high school horses, which are said to be as clever as any in the country.

INHERITANCE TAX NETS LARGE TOTAL

Collections Since 1904 Have Amounted to Over Four Millions of Dollars.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Aug. 22.—Since the introduction of the inheritance tax in 1904 over $4,611,632.63 has been collected from that source, according to a statement by John Harrington, inheritance tax collector for the state tax commission, today. The largest collections were made in 1913 when the aggregate for that year reached $2,470,066.

The inheritance tax law went into effect during the last three months of 1904, and for that year only $14,889.14 was collected. The actual collections under the law in the first year were very small, but in the second year with very great regularity, comments Mr. Harrington. In July, 1911, the administration of the inheritance tax was placed under the general direction of the tax commission. The collections each year since the introduction of the law follows:

June 30, 1904 (3 months)	$14,889.14
June 30, 1905	125,965.80
June 30, 1906	193,954.74
June 30, 1907	296,458.39
June 30, 1908	245,653.32
June 30, 1909	449,068.83
June 30, 1910	483,566.97
June 30, 1911	648,033.73
June 30, 1912	788,528.90
June 30, 1913	924,700.66
June 30, 1914	436,081.00
Total	$4,611,632.63

A SEVEN-ROOM BUNGALOW By John Henry Newson

"Home of Character, No. 122"

A bungalow of frame construction in rough-sawn lap siding, with the roof shingled and stained a very dark brown. The window sash are painted white. The grouping of windows is the sole ornamentation, and all windows are casements with glass set in leaded lines. The house, being situated between the avenue and lake, has the entrance from the avenue side and a veranda looking over the lake. The living room and dining room are separated by high cabinets forming bookcases, while the ceiling-line is unbroken through both of these rooms. The kitchen is isolated, and the servant's room is handy to the kitchen. This room is made accessible from the main hall so that it may be used as one of the main bedrooms or as a den. The sleeping quarters of the house are carried out according to the same principle of isolation as in all our bungalow plans. The attic contains one finished bedroom and a large finished storage space, lighted by windows at each gable end. Basement under the entire building, 51x41 feet.

Can be built for from $4500 to $6000. For further information address John Henry Newson, HOMES OF CHARACTER DEPT., The Gazette.

CHAPTER I.

The Message of the Rose.

Lapped deep in the leather-bound luxury of an ample lounge-chair, walled apart from the world by the venerable solitude of the library of London's most exclusive club, Mr. Alan Law sprawled (largely on the nap of his neck) and, squinting discontentedly down his nose, admitted that he was exhaustively bored.

Now the chair filled so gracefully stood by an open window, some twenty feet below which lay a sizable walled garden, an old English garden in full flower. And through the window, now and then, a half-hearted breeze wafted gusts of warm air, suave and enervating with the heavy fragrance of English roses.

Mr. Law drank deep of it, and in spite of his spiritual unrest, sighed slightly and shut his eyes.

An unspoken word troubled the depth of his consciousness, so that old memories stirred and struggled to its surface. The word was "Rose," and for the time seemed to be the name neither of a woman nor of a flower, but oddly of both, as though the two things were one. His mental vision, bridging the gap of a year, conjured up the vision of a little, sweet silhouette in white, with red roses at her belt, posed on a terrace of the Riviera against the burning Mediterranean blue.

Mr. Law was dully conscious that he ought to be sorry about something. But he was really very drowsy indeed; and so, drinking deep of wine-scented roses, he fell gently asleep.

The clock was striking four when he awoke; and before closing his eyes he had noticed that its hands indicated ten minutes to four. So he could not have slept very long.

For some few seconds Alan did not move, but rested as he was, incredulously regarding a rose which had materialized mysteriously upon the little table at his elbow. He was quite sure it had not been there when he closed his eyes, and almost as sure that it was not real.

And in that instant of awakening the magic fragrance of the rose-garden seemed to be even more strong and cloying sweet than ever.

Then he put out a gingerly hand and discovered that it was real beyond all question. A warm red rose, fresh-plucked, drops of water trembling and sparkling like tiny diamonds on the velvet of its fleshy petals. And when impulsively he took it by the stem, he discovered a most indisputable thorn—which did service for the traditional pinch.

Convinced that he wasn't dreaming, Alan transferred the rose to his sound hand, and meditatively sucked his thumb. Then he jumped up from the chair and glared suspiciously round the room. It was true that a practical joke in that solemn atmosphere were a thing unthinkable; still, there was the rose.

There was no one but himself in the library.

Perplexed to exasperation, Alan fled the club, only pausing on the way out to annex the envelope he found addressed to him in the letter-rack.

It was a blank white envelope of good quality, the address typewritten, the stamp English, and bore a London postmark half illegible.

Alan tore the envelope open in absent-minded fashion—and started as it stung. The enclosure was a simple playing card—a trey of hearts!

As for Alan Law, he wandered homeward in a state of stupefaction. He could read quite well the message of the rose. He would not soon forget that year-old parting with his Rose of the Riviera. "You say you love me but may not marry me—and we must part. Then promise this, that if ever you change your mind, you'll send for me." And her promise: "I will send you a rose."

But the year had lapsed with never a sign from her, so that he had grown accustomed to the unflattering belief that she had forgotten him. And now the sign had come—but what the deuce did the trey of hearts mean?

When morning came, London had lost Alan Law. No man of his acquaintance—nor any woman—had received the least warning of his disappearance. He was simply and sufficiently removed from English ken.

CHAPTER II.

The Sign of the Treys.

Out-of-doors, high brazen noon, a day in spring, the clamorous life of New York running as fluent as quicksilver through its brilliant streets.

Within-doors, neither sound nor sunbeam disturbed a perennial quiet that was yet not peace.

The room was like a wide, deep well of night, the haunt of teeming shadows and sinister silences.

Little, indeed, was visible beyond the lonely shape that brooded over it, the figure of an old man motionless in a great, leather-bound chair.

His hair was as white as his heart was black. The rack of his bones, clothed in a thick black dressing-gown with waist-cord of crimson silk, from the thighs down was covered by a black woollen rug. He stared unblinkingly at nothing; a man eleven-eighths dead, completely paralyzed but for his head and his left arm.

Presently a faint clicking signal disturbed the stillness. Seneca Trine put forth his left hand and touched one of a row of crimson buttons embedded in the desk. Something else clicked—this time a latch. There was the faintest possible noise of a closing door, and a smallish man stole noiselessly into the light, paused beside the desk and waited respectfully for leave to speak.

"Well?"

"A telegram, sir—from England."

"Give it me!"

The old man seized the sheet of yellow paper, scanned it hungrily, and crushed it in his tremulous claw with a gesture of uncontrollable emotion. "Send my daughter Judith here!"

Two minutes later a young woman in street dress was admitted to the chamber of shadows.

"You sent for me, father?"

"Sit down."

She found and placed a chair at the desk, and obediently settled herself in it.

"Judith—tell me—what day is this?"

"My birthday. I am twenty-one."

"And your sister's birthday? Rose, too, is twenty-one."

"Yes."

"You could have forgotten that," the old man pursued almost mockingly.

"Do you really dislike your twin-sister so intensely?"

The girl's voice trembled. "You know," she said, "we have nothing in common—beyond parentage and this abominable resemblance. Our natures differ as light from darkness."

"And which would you say was—light?"

"Hardly my own: I'm no hypocrite. Rose is everything that they tell me my mother was, while I—the girl smiled strangely—"I think—I am more your daughter than my mother."

A nod of the white head confirmed the suggestion. "It is true. I have watched you closely, Judith, perhaps more closely than even you knew. Before I was brought to this—the wasted hand made a significant gesture—"I was a man of strong passions. Your mother never loved, but rather feared me. And Rose is the mirror of her mother's nature, gentle, unselfish, sympathetic. But you, Judith, you are like a second self to me."

An accent of profound satisfaction informed his voice. The girl waited in a silence that was tensely expectant.

"Then, if on this your birthday I were to ask a service of you that might injuriously affect the happiness of your sister—?"

The girl laughed briefly: "Only ask it!"

"And how far would you go to do my will?"

"Where would you stop in the service of one you loved?"

Seneca Trine nodded gravely. And after a brief pause, "Rose is in love," he announced.

"Oh, I know—I know!" the father affirmed with a faint ring of satisfaction. "I am old, a cripple, prisoner of this living tomb; but all things I should know—somehow—I come to know in course of time!"

"It's true—that Englishman she scraped an acquaintance with on the Riviera last year—what's his name?"

Law, Alan, Law."

"In the main," the father corrected mildly, "you are right. Only, he's not English. His father was Wellington Law, of Law & Son."

She knew better than to interrupt, but her seeming patience was belied by the whitening knuckles of a hand that lay within the little pool of blood-red light.

And presently the deep voice rolled on: "Law and I were once friends; then—it came to pass that we loved one woman, your mother. I won her—all but her heart: too late she realized it was Law she loved. He never forgave me, nor I him. Though he married another woman, still he held from me the love of my wife. I could not sleep for hating him—and he was no better off. Each sought the other's ruin; it came to be an open duel between us, in Wall street. One of us had to fall—and I held the stronger hand. The night before the day that was to have seen my triumph, I walked in Central park, as was my habit to tire my body so that my heart might sleep. Crossing the East drive I was struck by a motor-car running at high speed without lights. I was picked up insensible—and lived only to be what I am today. Law triumphed in the street while I lay helpless; only a living remnant of my fortune remained to me. Then his sold me the truth; it was Law's car with Law at the wheel that had struck me down—a deliberate attempt at assassination. I sent Law word that I meant to have a life for a life. For what was I better than dead? I promised him that, should he escape, I would have the life of his son. He knew I meant it, and sent his wife and son abroad. Then he died suddenly, of some common ailment—they said; but I knew better. He died of fear of me."

Trine smiled a cruel smile: "I had made his life a reign of terror. Ever so often I would send Law, one way or another—mysteriously—always—a trey of hearts; it was my death-sign for him; as you know, our name, Trine, signifies a group of three. And every time he received a trey of hearts, within twenty-four hours an attempt of some sort would be made upon his life. The strain broke down his nerve."

"Then I turned my attention to the son, but the distance was too great, the difficulties insuperable. The Law millions mocked all my efforts; their alliance with the Rothschilds placed mother and son under the protection of every secret police in Europe. But they dared not come home. At length I realized I could win only by playing waiting game. I needed three things: more money; to bring Alan Law back to America; and one agent I could trust, one incorruptible agent. I ceased to persecute mother and son, lulled them into a sense of false security, and by careful speculations repaired my fortunes. In Rose I had the lure to draw the boy back to America; in you, the one person I could trust."

"I sent Rose abroad and arranged that she should meet Law. They fell in love at sight. Then I wrote informing her that the man she had chosen was the son of him who had murdered all of me but my brain. It fell out as I foresaw. You can imagine the scene of passionate renunciation—pledges of undying constancy—the arrangement of a secret code whereby, when she needed him, she would send him a single rose—the birth of a great romance!"

The old man laughed sardonically. "Well, there is the history. Now the rose has been sent; Law is already homeward bound; my agents are watching his every step. The rest is in your hands."

The girl bent forward, breathing heavily, eyes aflame in a face that had assumed a waxy pallor.

"What is it you want of me?"

"Bring Alan Law to me. Dead or alive, bring him to me. But alive, if you can compass it; I wish to see him die. Then I, too, may die content."

The hand of hot-blooded youth stole forth, and grasped the icy hand of death-in-life.

"I will bring him," Judith swore—"dead or alive, you shall have him here."

CHAPTER III.

The Trail of Treachery.

But young Mr. Law was sole agent of his own evanishment; just as he was nobody's fool, least of all his own. The hidden meaning of the trey of hearts perplexed him with such distrust that before leaving London, he dispatched a code cablegram to his confidential agent in New York.

What do you know about the trey of hearts? Answer immediately.

The answer forestalled his arrival in Liverpool:

Trine's death sign for your father, Frank's sake, look to yourself and keep away from America.

But Alan had more than once visited America incognito and unknown to Seneca Trine via a secret route of his own selection.

Eight days out of London, a second class passenger newly landed from one of the C.P. steamships, he walked the streets of Quebec—and dropped out of sight between dark and dawn, to turn up presently in the distant Canadian hamlet of Bale St. Paul, apparently a very tenderfooted American woods-traveler chaperoned by a taciturn Indian guide picked up heaven-knows-where.

Crossing the St. Lawrence by night, the two struck off quietly into the hinterland of the Notre Dame range, then crossed the Maine border.

On the second noon thereafter, trail-worn and weary, as lean as their depleted packs, the two paused on a ridge-pole of the wilderness up back of the Allagash country, and made their midday meal in a silence which, if normal in the Indl, was one of deep misgivings on Alan's part.

Continually his gaze questioned the northern skies that lowered portentously, foul with smoke—a country-wide conflagration that threatened all northern Maine, bone-dry with drought.

Only the south offered a fair prospect. And the fires were making southward far faster than man might hope to travel through that grim and stubborn land.

Even as he stared, Alan saw fresh columns of dun-colored smoke spring up in the northwest.

Anxiously he consulted the impassive mask of the Indian, from whom his questions gained Alan little comfort. Jacob recommended forced marches to Spirit lake, where cures might be found to aid their flight; and withdrew into sullen reverie.
